Breast Physician

MBBS, FASBP

Dr Margo McKern has been working as a breast physician at Sydney Breast Clinic since 2004.

Margo enjoys working in women's health, including educating women about disease prevention.

Her other interests include menopause management after breast cancer and risk assessment of women with a family history of breast cancer.

She believes that working with a team of professionals like the one at SBC which includes radiologists, pathologists, surgeons, radiographers, sonographers and other breast physicians, is beneficial for both patient management and for the sharing of valuable knowledge and expertise.

Margo graduated from the University of NSW in 1983 and worked in general practice for 10 years and in sexual and reproductive health at the Family Planning Association for 15 years.

Margo obtained the Fellowship of the Australasian Society of Breast Physicians in 2008.

Margo is involved in the breast screening program in the Cook Islands, which she finds immensely rewarding.
